Spirituality of Protest

Conversations with God
in Troubling Times

June 1, 8 and 15
6:30-8:00 PM

Often our public and private conversations with God are “sugar-coated” and do not reflect the realities of our lives. In contrast, the early Hebrews voiced their sorrows, frustrations, anger and unhappiness to God in both public worship and private reflection/prayer through laments. Dare we yell at God and challenge God? Can our prayers, hymns, preaching, and art really articulate what is happening in our lives and the world? Is our God big enough to respond and is our faith such that we can be in real dialogue with God? This study is designed to strengthen our relationship with God and provide new avenues of expressing our realities.
